INTRODUCTION

India, with 1,270,272,105 (1.27 billion) people is the second most populated country in the world The figures show that India represents almost 17.31% of the world's population, which means one out of six people on this planet live in India.<sup>1</sup> More than 50% of India's current populations below the age of 25. Total Female Population in India is 614,397,079 (614.4 million) India has the largest population of adolescent's girls (243 million). The main problems of girls in India are child marriage, women empowerment, Female infanticide/foeticide, lack of power ,lack of education, malnutrition, Substance abuse, Teen Prostitution, early marriage, mental health problems, early pregnancy increase death rate, Accidental and intentional violence and eve-teasing<sup>2</sup>

Eve teasing has become a concern of the country, owing to its injurious effects on women, especially to the teen aged girls. It's obvious that no conscious citizen of our country is unacquainted with this problem created by evil-doers<sup>3</sup>

The term Eve teasing is used to refer to sexual harassment of women in public places such as the streets, public transportation , parks, beaches , and cinema halls. This type of a public harassment by a lone man or gangs of women includes verbal assaults such as making passes or unwelcome sexual jokes : nonverbal assaults such as showing obscene gestures , winking , whistling , and staring ; and physical assaults such as pinching, fondling and rubbing against women in public places. several instances of eve teasing have been followed by more violent assaults such as rape and murder <sup>4</sup>

METHODOLOGY

The research design selected for study was “Mixed Method” (qualitative and quantitative) used for assessing the attitude of undergraduate male and female students enrolled in M.M. University and to explore their experiences regarding Eve Teasing. Formal administrative approval was obtained from the principal of respective colleges of M.M.U, Mullana, Ambala .For the present study the sample size was 400 and they were informed about the purpose of study.

- 200- Undergraduate Female students. (100 Medical and 100 Non medical)
- 200- Undergraduate Male students (100 Medical and 100 Non medical)

The following data collection tools were developed in order to obtain data ::

- Section A : Information regarding sample characteristics of study subjects.
- Section B : Attitude scale (5-point likert scale) to assess the attitude of undergraduate students regarding Eve Teasing.

- Section C : Open ended questionnaire to explore their experiences regarding Eve Teasing as a social evil.

The paper and pencil technique was used to collect the data related to attitude and experiences of undergraduate students regarding Eve Teasing as a social evil .To ensure the content validity of the tools, it was submitted to 11 experts from the field of Medical Surgical Nursing ,Psychiatric Nursing, Paediatric Nursing ,Community health Nursing and Obstetrical Nursing .The reliability coefficient for assessment of attitude of students regarding eve teasing as a social evil was calculating using Karl Pearson method. The reliability coefficient ‘r’ of this questionnaire was .94 of male undergraduate students and .89 of female undergraduate students, which is more than .75 . Hence the questionnaire was found to be reliable. The data obtained in the study would be analyzed using both descriptive and inferential statistics i.e. mean, median, standard deviation, Z – test and chi- square.

RESULTS

Both the groups were Homogenous on the basis of qualification of mother , occupation of father , occupation of mother , family income per month and heterogeneous on the basis of age , place of living, qualification of father, siblings of opposite gender was found statistically at 0.05 level of significance.

DISCUSSION:-

In the present study it was seen that there was significant difference between the attitude of male and female undergraduate students enrolled in Maharishi Markandeshwar University. But a study was conducted by Biplob Kumar Dey to measure the attitude toward eve teasing among local residents and tool was administered to 200 people (100 males and 100 females) living in different areas of Dhaka city. The main effect of gender toward the attitude of eve teasing is non-significant ( $F=2.410$ ,  $df=1,192$ ). That means the attitude toward the eve teasing did not vary significantly according to gender.<sup>5</sup>

Majority of male (61%) and female (77%) students responded that eve teasing is a social evil. The study findings were found consistent with the study findings of study conducted by M. Kuruvilla and K. P. Anu, “Perceptions about sexual harassment: study among postgraduate girl students and women employees in a University Campus”<sup>6</sup>. The qualitative responses of male and female students regarding eve teasing as a social evil and prevention from eve teasing that were divided into two themes i.e. experiences regarding eve teasing and prevention from eve teasing and were further classified into subthemes these findings were supported by the findings of study conducted by Sheikh Mahinoor in which they studied about the eve teasing in Bangladesh. Present study also laid emphasis on the importance of mass media and also it shows the real picture of eve teasing in the society which was supported by a similar study conducted by Geeta Kashyap in which she studied the Role of Alternative Media in Empowerment of Women.<sup>7</sup>

CONCLUSION

Male And Female Undergraduate Students have Moderately favorable Attitude Towards Eve Teasing as a social evil. There was significant difference between attitude of male and female undergraduate students.eve teasing should be prevented through education, counseling and retaliate the culprits.
